

Abstract

The present invention relates to the formation of a double angle V-groove in the backside of plastic shells to provide a preweakened section for a vehicle application. The 5 double angle V-groove may be located at the airbag deployment opening of a vehicle.